

Angolan optical cable sales price list

AI Overview

Optical fiber cables in Angola are priced around $14,832–$16,102 per ton for imports and exports, with local retail prices for specific cables starting at approximately 602 Kz per meter. Average Market Prices

Export Prices: The average export price of optical fiber cables from Angola was $16,102 per ton in 2024, showing relative stability compared to previous years, with moderate growth trends over the past decade (2015–2024).

Import Prices: The average import price stood at $14,832 per ton in 2024, reflecting an 11% increase from the previous year, though historically import prices peaked at $27,639 per ton in 2016.

Local Retail Pricing For interior dielectric cables with 2 single-mode G657 fibers, including aramid reinforcement and halogen-free thermoplastic sheathing, the cost is approximately 602 Kz per meter, inclusive of accessories and installation elements.

Maintenance costs for such cables over a ten-year period are estimated at 48.18 Kz per meter.

Import Sources and Market Dynamics Angola imports most optical fiber cables from Portugal, Netherlands, and Brazil, with 546 shipments recorded from 13 suppliers as of mid-2023. The top importers include Brazil, the United States, and India, indicating a diverse supply chain.

Export destinations are limited, with the UK historically being a major recipient, influencing average export pricing.

Market Insights The Angolan optical fiber cable market has experienced fluctuations in consumption and trade, with a general trend of moderate price stability in recent years. Prices vary depending on cable type, fiber count, fire resistance class, and installation requirements, so specific project needs may affect final costs.

Businesses seeking to import or purchase locally should consider both tonnage-based pricing for bulk orders and per-meter retail pricing for smaller installations. This overview provides a practical reference for current Angolan optical cable prices, combining import/export averages and local retail examples, useful for procurement planning or market analysis.
