

CK100S Fiber Optic Fusion Splicer

Overview

Fujikura, a global leader in fiber optic solutions, announces the availability of the new 100S fiber optic fusion splicer, a core alignment splicer designed for professional environments that require reliable results, fast operation, and comprehensive control of the fusion. Fujikura, a global leader in fiber optic solutions, announces the availability of the new 100S fiber optic fusion splicer, a core alignment splicer designed for professional environments that require reliable results, fast operation, and comprehensive control of the fusion. Simultaneous fiber prep with core alignment lets technicians load two fibers at once, reducing splice time. Along with precise core observation, ABM and AFC create a self-correcting splicing process that reduces rework, minimizes downtime, and ensures consistently low-loss results. It is now. Built for the demands of modern fiber installation, the Fujikura 100S Fusion Splicer combines intelligent automation with user-first design to streamline daily splicing tasks. It represents Fujikura's latest generation of fusion splicers, succeeding the Fujikura 90S.
